Tourism-Aalborg:

Approaching a response rate that makes it possible to generalise across the Tourism-Aalborg student population, the number of respondents to this semester’s evaluation was 40, divided across 10th sem. (19) and 8th sem. (21). With 73 distributed evaluation forms, this makes for a response rate of 55%.

A whopping 36% of respondents have spent 40 or more hours a week on their studies, 32% have spent between 30 and 40 hours a week on their studies, and another 32% report less than 30 hours a week. Considering that students are supposed to spend 37.5 hours per week on studying, these figures are generally to be considered satisfactory, albeit there is still room for improvement: 28% report spending only 10-20 (or less) hours per week on their studies.

55% of the students found the overall benefit of the semester ‘big’ or ‘very big’ whereas 41% found the benefit to be ‘average’. Respondents generally feel well-informed about goals and purposes of the programme modules, as well as practical information about the programme.

Students are generally happy with the project writing process and project work. 44% chose to write their project as part of a group. Since 19 respondents are thesis writers who almost always choose to write as individuals, this figure must be considered high. 55% chose to complete the project in cooperation with an external collaborator – a very satisfactory figure.

56% declare that physical conditions are satisfactory or very satisfactory, while only 2 students are unsatisfied with the physical environment.
