Tourism, Copenhagen campus:

The number and distribution of respondents – 67, 40 of these semester 7th semester – the rest 9th semester. It is therefore difficult to make any valid generalizations based on this evaluation.

Only 33% report spending more than 30 hours on their studies each week, 68% spend between 10 and 30 hours per week. Considering that students are supposed to spend 37.5 hours per week on studying, these figures must be the cause of concern. Yet, informed of the required workload, 71% declare that their total work effort during the semester has been satisfactory. This discrepancy needs to be dealt with by the Study Board.

The majority feel well-informed about goals and purposes of the programme modules, but 16% disagree that they were clearly informed. This is lower than for the last evaluation. Respondents find that the benefit of the different study activities has been ‘big’/’very big’ (60%) or ‘average’ (37%). Only 3% (1 respondent) find the academic outcome to have been ‘small’. This is a very positive development.

The majority of responding students are happy with (or indifferent about) the project formation process (74%). Only 5 (14%) find that it wasn’t satisfactory.

69% feel project (team) work went well, 14% that it didn’t.

The responses regarding the 9th semester are too few to make any valid generalizations. Although 28 respondents ticked the box for having followed the 9th semester, only 9 students provide any answers to the asked questions.
